Title of Artifact: Classroom Matrix Date Completed: Spring 2014

In Classroom Behavior and Management EDU 314, we had to complete a Classroom Matrix. Our matrix would be something that would be hung in our classroom and was to be followed by our students. This matrix met standard ten, where it allowed students to take on responsibilities and teachers to collaborate with colleagues, families and students.

My matrix included student's safety, responsibility and their respect for others. Students need to be under these three categories at all times, especially when they are arriving in the classroom, working alone or together as a whole class and when they are at their seats.

This artifact works great with the Leadership and Collaboration Standard. The teacher is being the leader in the classroom and they are letting their students know what is expected from them (being responsibly, safe and respectful).

If I could change anything about my matrix, I would add more columns. In these columns would be the gym, cafeteria, playground, computer lab, leaving the room, the hallways and the specials rooms. I feel that students should know what is expected from them at all times of the day.
